McGlothlin

Genealogy & Research

Although you will find a McGlothlin in every state, the ones with the largest populations today are: Virginia/West Virginia, Texas, Indiana, Tennessee, Ohio, Florida, California, Missouri, Oklahoma, and Louisiana.

A MacLachlan
Clansman, from an 1848 print.

Most of the McGlothlins (regardless of spelling) who came over prior to the great Irish potato famine [1845-1848] were, in fact, Scots who had settled in north Ireland (Ulster) at the invitation of King James Stuart (James VI of Scotland/James I of the United Kingdom) in an attempt to oust the native Irish population...hence the term Scotch-Irish (Scottish immigrants to Ireland). In Britain they were referred to as "Ulster-Scots". My father used to say we were Scotch-Irish. Many McGlothlin families mistakenly refer to themselves as Irish because one of their ancestors was born in Ireland. The Scots didn't intermarry much with the northern Irish, however, there may be some McGlothlins who are Irish as, by 1848, the spelling "McGlothlin" had been around awhile and the port officials may have written it down for the new immigrants as such. A hundred-fifty to 300 years ago, there was no real concept of nationality, especially in Scotland where people owed fidelity to the local Laird. When asked where they were from, people often responded with the last place they lived, and not with the "nationality" of their father. A Scot born in Ireland would likely say (in the 1700-1800s) that he was Irish. The 1790 US census department concluded in an official write-up that the name "McGlothlin" was a valid variation to MacLachlan, the accepted modern spelling used in Scotland. If you're interested, the Clan MacLachlan has an organization (to which I belong). There is a great amount of spelling variations to MacLachlan and/or McGlothlin. Some that have been prevalent in my branch are McLaughlin, McLaughlin, McGlothlen, MacLachlin, McLachlin, McGlothin, & McGlothen. Many of the variations are a result of illiteracy and/or the lack of standardized spelling in the 1800s. Some of the earliest spellings used in this country were phonetisations rather than actual accepted spellings. Even in Scotland, there was conflict over the proper spelling from the earliest recorded usage in 1308 (MacLachlan). There are also several recognized SEPTS of MacLachlan; namely, MacLaghlán, MacLauchlan, MacLaughlan, and Lachlan. The Gaelic (Celtic) spelling is MacLachlain. The MacLachlan clan is allied with (related to) the MacEwan and Lamont clans.

Scotland

McGlothlin in America

Some of our clan came to the new world as settlers, some were sent here as prisoners of war from one of the various wars between Scotland and England, and some as indentured servants. We're not sure when the first one came to the colonies, but I know that there was a MacLaughlin who settled in Maryland prior to 1648; and a Robert MacLachlan who was sent to Boston as a POW (battle of Dunbar) in 1651. So, we've been here for some time. MacLachlan/McGlothlin families also settled in other parts of the colonies and some retained the original spelling, while others allowed port officials to alter or Anglicize it to various forms. This is one of the biggest headaches when researching the name McGlothlin, because they were constantly changing the spelling. There are instances of families living in the same area and being recorded under different spelling according to whomever was doing it. Sometimes, family members purposely used opposing spellings.

There were two significant settlements of McGlothlins: in the Tazewell/Russell county area of Virginia, and in Sumner county, Tennessee, both dating back to the late 1700s. I have a fair portion of these groups charted, but not all of them. Many from both groups settled further north and west as land became available.

My McGlothlin Family

As the genealogy listing at the bottom of this page shows, the oldest member of my line that I have been able to document was William McGlothlin, born in Indiana Territory in 1814. He was one of 5 boys. I know nothing of his parents, although the name Maximus E. McGlothlin was once suggested. Dad used to say that the family once lived in Virginia and were kin somehow to "Stonewall" Jackson. The family moved to Missouri Territory between 1814 and 1821 where they eventually settled in Lafayette County. William and his twin brother married sisters: William to Jane Vellery Turnidge on 8 October 1833, and Abraham to Mary Ann Turnidge on 14 November 1834; both couples went across the Missouri river to Ray County for this. Their farms were located close to the river and this may be partially responsible for their selling off the land in 1848, as the river flooded often. Abraham stayed in Missouri, but the rest of the family went to Grayson County, Texas. From there, William and Jane later relocated to the hills in the western part of Palo Pinto county, Texas in December of 1858 along with their married son, Benjamin and his wife, Martha.

Edward N. McGlothlin
& his mother, Sarah
(c 1863)

About 1858-9, William's son John married Sarah "Victoria" Ann Dodson and went just east to Parker County, Texas where they bought a farm near Azle. Their oldest child, Cordelia, died as an infant, and John died when his horse threw him, about the time that his son, Edward Nicholas McGlothlin, was born on 13 January 1862. If there is a gravestone for either one, I've never found them. William and several of his sons, plus his nephew Cornelius "Neal" McGlothlin, were Indian fighters along with being ranchers; They had to be as the ranch was in Comanche territory. In the meantime, the War Between the States had started in 1861, & Texas joined the Confederacy. Some of the boys went to nearby Stephen county and joined the Confederate Army: William Alexander McGlothlin (age 20) on 3/11/1862, and Benjamin Franklin McGlothlin (age 24) & George Washington McGlothlin (age 18) on 2/18/1864. Benjamin was placed into J.J. Curetor's Company and kept in the area to protect against Indian attacks.

In 1871, Sarah (Dodson) McGlothlin remarried to a Confederate veteran, Hilliard B. Smith, and moved the family to Erath County, Texas where they raised a new family along with Edward. He learned how to farm cotton from his stepfather. In 1892, Edward and Jane Cole went to Weatherford, Texas to get married and went to live in Dallas for a short time. My grandfather, Oran H. McGlothlin, was born in Dallas in 1895. Earlier, in 1892, Edward and Jane's brother, Frank, went to the Run of 1892 that opened up the Cheyenne Territory in west Oklahoma, and put a claim to some land (160 acres) along the Washita river. In 1895, Edward and Jane obtained a covered wagon, stopped in Ft. Worth to get some cattle (which they herded to Oklahoma), added her brother Marty, and the Thurmond family, to the train, and went north to settle their new land.

Ed & Jane constructed a home, using the timber from the covered wagon, near a wooded area along the Washita river in what is now Roger Mills County, Oklahoma, and planted about 30 acres of cotton. The last 2 of their 4 children were born in that cabin. In 1913, Ed & Jane went to another part of their ranch and built a red stone house from material gathered from a hill behind the structure. The tiny 2 room house is in ruins now but at one time housed Ed & Jane; Oran and his wife, Mana, and their son Edward H.; and Roy & his wife, Letha, and their son, Oran W. During the war, Oran H. McGlothlin served in the A.E.F. in France, and after getting discharged from the military, worked as a trucker. He met Mana Cox back in Roger Mills County and got married at the courthouse in Cheyenne in 1919, and later moved from the red stone house to the old cabin. The cabin eventually burned down years later, but by that time, Oran and his family had moved.

During the 1930s, the great Drought hit west Oklahoma, and the McGlothlin ranch was right in the middle of it. Oran W. remembered seeing a cloud of dust that stretched as high as the sky and across the horizon. Times were lean, so Oran H. McGlothlin decided to sell off his portion of the ranch and moved his family on to Farmington, New Mexico where he drove a truck for a farm. Edward H., my father, eventually married Tracy Carver, had a daughter (Connie Jean), and moved to Arizona where he ended up joining the army. Dad & Tracy divorced later while he was serving in France during WWII. While in Germany, he sustained some major injuries and was sent to the VA hospital in El Paso, Texas where he met my mother, Louella Svoboda, who was an army physical therapist there. They married soon after in New Mexico and moved to Berwyn, Illinois where I was born. (See Glen McGlothlin's Home Page)

I am most interested in IN, MO, TX, & OK, but I collect data on all branches of McGlothlin (and various other spellings). If you can contribute to my knowledge (database) or wish to exchange data for any line of McGlothlin, please do so as I can then help others in their genealogical research.
